markilux Awning Covers – Quality made in Germany

Functionality can be so beautiful

During the production of our awning fabrics, we leave nothing to chance. We add a final finishing flourish to the fabric with a special formula developed in house. This finish gives our awning covers incredible longevity and resistance to rain, light and fluctuations in temperature. Certified in accordance with Oeko-Tex standard 100, markilux awning covers are guaranteed free from harmful dyes and chemicals.

With an Ultraviolet Protection Factor (UPF) of 50+, all solid markilux awning covers made from sunsilk or sunvas offer the highest possible degree of UV protection offered by fabrics. Your skin's own protection factor is enhanced by a factor of more than 50. This allows you to enjoy sunny days for longer, without putting your health at risk.

Brilliant vividness. Silky smooth surface. Awning covers in sunsilk impress with their unique luminosity.

Soft glow. Textile-like to the touch. Awning covers in sunvas score with their textile character and natural appearance.

Self-cleaning effect

Water droplets pick up dirt particles and run off the awning cover taking the dirt with them (the awning must be set at a pitch of at least 14 degrees), ensuring you can enjoy your beautiful fabric for a long time to come.

Bonded awning covers

Panel joints bonded together ultrasonically ensure a consistent, unobtrusive appearance. The excellent resistance to water, light and fluctuations in temperature ensures that the service life of the cover is extended substantially.

Light and weather resistance and resistance to fading

High-tech yarns dyed right to the core and a high-grade finish developed in house guarantee the most stunning shade in which to relax.

The artful art of technology

This innovative markilux printing technology makes the creation of highly unusual motifs possible. With smart art markilux is presenting highly unusual fabric patterns – works of art, in fact. A visual highlight for your patio and with the charm of artistic creativity. Like this, leaving your “imprint” takes on a whole new meaning.

Impressive from any and every side

When viewed against the light, the pattern motif is clearly visible on the unprinted underside of the fabric. The printed motif is visible on the side hems of the cover where these have been turned under. A pattern mismatch may be in evidence where the cover panels have been joined.

visutex | vision – innovation – inspiration

“Architecture is the continuation of Nature’s constructional ambitions.” Karl Friedrich Schinkel

The wider field of architecture served as a source of inspiration for the development of our visutex collection. Its shapes, textures, colours and basic principles of good design are reflected in our exclusive fabric patterns.

“Style is the mistress of art.” Coco Chanel

For the second theme in our visutex collection, we allowed ourselves to be inspired by the classics in fashion. At the same time, we were constantly aware that tastes in fashion can change very quickly. However, we also know that while fashion may go out of date, style never does.

“Colours are the smiles of Nature ...” James Henry Leigh Hunt

Colour is life. Colour is lifestyle. It is for this reason that we have set aside an inordinate amount of room for the theme of colour in our collection. Our competence in this field even enables you to choose precisely the colour that makes you feel good from an extremely broad palette and to fulfil the realisation of your own personal awning cover. colour on demand. My colour. My style.

“The freedom of imagination is not an escape into fantasy, it is boldness and creativeness at the same time.” Eugène Ionesco

As a pioneer in innovative awning fabric design, we have dedicated the fourth theme in our collection to special effects. Extraordinary “glowing” visual effects come into being as a result of the use of exceptional colours. This is truly unique.

Solar protection with a view.

This sunvas fabric with special perforation technique stands for impressive transparency as well as good light and air permeability. We recommend transolair be used for the markilux shadeplus, side screens as well as vertical roller blinds and glass canopy awnings.

This perforated fabric maintains visual contact with the outdoors and shields against prying eyes at the same time.

It ensures good air circulation between the cover and the glass. This effectively reduces the build-up of a heat cushion between fabric and glass. The creation of water troughs is minimised.

Ideal for conservatories

Gaps in the warp, woven into the fabric, make the material permeable to both air and water. The risk of the formation of water troughs in rain showers and the build-up of excessive heat between cover and glass is reduced. The aluminium coating* applied to the series 332.. reduces solar gain as well. The weather fast finish also inhibits the accumulation of dirt and offers excellent water repellency.

* The top side of the material is impregnated with a higher percentage of aluminium and should face upwards/ outwards to maximise solar reflection. The aluminium in the coating is visible, especially in the case of light cover patterns and under backlit conditions.

Good to know

For technical reasons, the fabric panels of perfotex awning covers for the markilux 8850 are always stitched together. The covers of all other vertical roller blinds and glass canopy awnings are bonded to one another using a state-of-the-art procedure.

A valance is a small decorative piece of fabric suspended from the front profile

It gives your markilux folding-arm awning that classic look (not available in all models/optional). markilux has chosen a standard braid that matches every fabric pattern. Should you, however, wish to have an alternative braid colour, please choose one from the colour options shown.

The pattern of the valance always matches that of the cover. It is cut from the same piece of material and runs out symmetrically on both sides. In the case of striped fabrics, the valance shape is matched to the stripes in the material. We cannot guarantee that the pattern repeat of a valance supplied at a later date will match that of the original cover.

Awning covers are industrially manufactured textile products which serve both a functional and a decorative purpose. They are high-performance products that meet strict technical requirements. During every phase of production, they undergo extensive laboratory tests. Criteria such as water impermeability, stiffness, dirt and water-repellent properties, resistance to tearing and tear propagation, colour fastness and numerous other characteristics are defined, assessed and guaranteed for each fabric type by the manufacturer.

Although only first-class, quality controlled fabric is used in production, there are limits to the degree of perfection that can be achieved. Small irregularities such as knots, thicker and thinner sections of yarn, isolated yarn breakages as well as certain idiosyncrasies of awning covers are phenomena that awning owners complain about occasionally, but such characteristics cannot be completely eradicated even with today's technology.

Creases

Creases can appear during the cover manufacturing process and if the fabric has been folded. A dark line may become visible at the crease when viewed against the light, especially in the case of lighter colours. This is because the fibres have become kinked when the fabric was folded (altered light refraction).

Puckering at the panel joints and in the centre of the panels

Puckering can appear along the side hems, around the panel joints and in the centre of the panels. There is a double layer of fabric at the seams. This results in different rolling diameters thus creating tension within the fabric and hence puckering. The tension exerted by the folding arms and the weight of the roller tube and / or front profile can exacerbate this effect. Puckering can also develop if a water trough forms during heavy rainfall.

Resistance to rain

Solar protection fabrics are impregnated with a water-repellent finish and, if properly cared for and used at a pitch of at least 14°, remain impervious to water during short, light rainfall.

During prolonged and/or heavy rainfall the awning must not be extended or should be retracted to prevent damage.

If the cover becomes wet, the awning must be extended again at the earliest opportunity once the rain has stopped to allow the fabric to dry and prevent the build-up of mildew, i.e. marking of the fabric.

Stretching of the side hems

In most cases an active tensioning system keeps the cover almost permanently taut. Although seams and hems provide reinforcement, they also have to withstand the most strain. When the fabric is being rolled up, the seams and hems lie on top of one another which increases the pressure and tension even more. This results in increased strain and elongation. As a consequence the side hems may sag slightly during extension and retraction of the awning.

How to take proper care of your awning cover

Dust and dirt can best be removed when dry using a soft brush. Remove leaves, twigs and similar debris immediately. Small marks or stains should be removed using water and a commercially accepted, preferably liquid, mild detergent (5% soap solution: water temperature max. 30 degrees). Rinse thoroughly with water and treat the affected area with a commercially accepted tent impregnation spray. We wish to make you aware of the fact that this measure will not restore the cover to its original state.

Detailed instructions for the awning purchaser with all important information regarding operation, care and maintenance are included with every awning delivery.
